3 General framework of the call

3.1 The fundamental aim of this call for projects is to foster research in groundbreaking and highly relevant projects that lead the advancement of knowledge and offer solutions related to some of the most important health problems of our century. The "la Caixa" Banking Foundation seeks research projects of scientific excellence in its field, with potential value and a high social impact. The "la Caixa" Banking Foundation encourages projects with an innovative focus that cross the boundaries between different areas of research, aimed at new and emerging research fields and/or including unconventional approaches to problems of health. The Call aims to support basic, clinical and translational research projects. We understand translational research as the cross-talk between basic and clinical research, in order to transfer laboratory results to patient care and to use the knowledge obtained from clinical practice in the generation of new scientific advances.

3.2 Projects eligible for this call must be led by non-profit Research Performing Institutions (Host Institutions) based in Spain or Portugal.

3.3 The Projects must be submitted in one of the following five Thematic Areas:
